This position requires:

- Development of strategic programmes and overseeing their implementation, including that of an important lobby campaign underway,
- Representation of the industry association in the European institutions and with other stakeholders.
- Managing the communication programme of the association
- Management of the association's legal and financial affairs.
- Managing the development of positions through working groups on regulatory, scientific and technical issues.
- Managing the secretariat team to ensure optimum service to clients.

Skills required:

- Good knowledge of EU food law and excellent knowledge of the operation of the EU institutions and EFSA.
- Excellent English and a good knowledge of at least one other language.
- Strong and proven organisational and team leadership skills.
- Clear analytical and strategic mind and excellent communication skills.
- Ability to manage pressure and still hit deadlines.
- Desire to work on food and health issues within a specialist team.

All EAS staff work closely together and are expected to be strongly self-motivated in their areas of responsibility. A highly competitive package is available for candidates with the right skills and experience.
